

Dear X,

I am writing to you to alert you to the extent of ongoing privatisation in the NHS, exemplified by recent events such as the purchase of 49 London GP practices by the American healthcare company Centene, the circumvention of normal procurement rules in relation to the purchase of personal protective equipment, and the extent to which the so-called 'NHS test and trace' programme is both controlled and delivered outside the NHS.

I would like to ask you to do all you can to highlight these practices and to prevent them from taking place in the future.

Yours sincerely,
